Report of the President

INSTEAD of going into details of the Society's activities during the year now ending, I shall leave that task to the Director and confine my report to questions of policy and major problems which have been or must be decided.

Each year I have begun my remarks by saying that the past has been a momentous year in our history. If not "momentous," I have used some similar adjective. Now I have run out of adjectives, but the events have been even greater than before.

Let me say first that the success of the Society does not depend on our building program or even on our financial stability. It is made or lost by the Director and his staff. It is pleasant to report to you, although it is self-evident, that I am told very often of the high reputation which the Society is getting among institutions of its kind and this praise almost always ends with favorable comments on the personnel.

As I thought over the activities of this last year, I found myself wondering if our Director ever thinks back to his first days here and what his reactions must be when he remembers the dingy quarters to which he was introduced, and our meetings, attended by a faithful few, of whom, fortunately, several can still be found in regular attendance.

Our new auditorium speaks for itself. As I have previously reported, we were able to build it from the profits on some of our investments and did not have to call on our members for subscriptions, nor did we impair our income. The building of this structure will, without doubt, have a greater influence on the future of the Society than any other event except the acquisition of our present home. It is leading us to develop new programs, which in turn will attract new members. The success of our seminar on early architecture proved this. It has made us a live organization to many persons who only knew us as a collection of dusty books. It also puts a new responsibility on us to control the expansion of our activities so as to benefit the Society without diverting it from its original purposes.

We have again lived within our income, thanks to the hard work and careful supervision of our Director. The margin of our surplus is small, and, in company with most other endowed institutions, we will have to find safe ways of increasing our income to care for the increasing expense of the future. This is particularly true in regard to the salaries of our staff. We cannot expect this trained personnel to make sacrifices to stay with us.

We have added an occasional member to our staff in recent years but it is still smaller than it should be if it is to care properly for our library and our collections. There is much to be done in cataloguing and indexing, as well as physical care.

This comment suggests a condition which has serious implications for all similar institutions. I refer to the dearth of trained personnel to properly care for and restore their possessions. The mechanical age has made hand work, if available, too costly for ordinary purposes. A hand bindery is almost extinct and in any case must charge more than is feasible for any but very rare books. Cabinetmakers and restorers of paintings are equally scarce. Lately a school for wood carvers and other artisans, in England, was closed because no pupils could be obtained. Some English museums are banding together to be able to retain the services of skilled men and women on a year-round basis by pooling their work. This is a solution which we should consider seriously and see if similar efforts cannot be made in New England.

This year has seen us enter the field of historical publications. We have gained valuable experience and have learned that publications in our field cannot be sold in great quantities. This means that they should be subsidized by an adequate publication fund.

A year ago I referred to the furnishing of the Senate Chamber in the Old State House. The future of this building is now a matter of concern, since the present occupants of the first floor, The Hartford Chamber of Commerce, are to move out. Your Standing Committee has authorized your officers to take such steps as may be necessary to assume the leadership in a plan to make it a useful and admired public monument. This will involve ways of furnishing it to some extent and installing suitable historic exhibits. We hope before long to perfect plans to secure the cooperation of other societies in developing this.

He came to America in 1923, starting as a bricklayer and building up his career to President of the firm which bore his name in 1954. He had previously served as the firm's executive vice president, vice president, and treasurer.

Mr. May was a bachelor with residence in Granby. He belonged to a number of Masonic groups, including the Shriners; was past president of the Hartford Rotary Club; and was a member of Center Church, Congregational, Hartford. Funeral services were held at the South Congregational Church in Granby, with burial at Granby Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Bergen Morgan; a son, John Morgan of Brookline, Massachusetts; and a daughter, Mrs. John A. Kell, Jr., of Needham, Massachusetts.

MARJORIE REINHARDT

Marjorie Reinhardt of West Hartford, a member of this Society since December 1, 1953, died on March 26, 1957. She was director of food service and nutrition of Hartford schools. She entered the service of the city's schools, 1949, in the same post she held at the time of her death.

Before coming to Hartford, Miss Reinhardt taught home economics in Minnesota schools, serving as a hospital dietitian, and for five years she was manager of dining halls and instructor of institutional management at the University of Delaware.

She was a member of the American School Foods Service Association, the American Home Economics Association, the American Educational Association, and the State groups of each of these.

Miss Reinhardt was born January 24, 1901, in Fountain City, Wisconsin, a daughter of the late Jean and Sarah Richtman Reinhardt. She took her bachelor's degree in home economics at Milwaukee Downer College in 1922, and her master's degree in institutional management at Columbia University Teacher's College in 1949.

She leaves two sisters, Phyllis J. Reinhardt of West Hartford, and Mrs. Joseph Gleason of Old Chatham, New York. Funeral services and burial took place at Fountain City, Wisconsin.

CHARLES FREDERICK TAFT SEAVERNS

Charles Frederick Taft Seaverns of Hartford, a member of this Society since December 7, 1920, died at his summer home in Camden, Maine, on July 11, 1956.

Mr. Seaverns was born in Chicago December 1, 1878, the son of Frederick Abijah and Rebecca Lowell Houghton Seaverns. He was a graduate of the Boston Latin School and went on to Colby College where he received an A.B. degree in 1901, taking his Master of Arts degree at Harvard a year later. He taught at the Robbins School, Norfolk, Connecticut, and the Hill School, Pottstown, Pennsylvania, before joining the faculty of the Hartford Public High School where he taught Latin and other subjects from 1914 to 1923. On June 24, 1914, Mr. Seaverns married Mary Bushnell Hillyer, granddaughter of the Reverend Dr. Horace Bushnell.

Besides his interest in cultural and educational activities which led him at one time to be vice president of the Wadsworth Athenaeum, a trustee of Colby College and the Kingswood School, West Hartford, and other organizations, Mr. Seaverns was formerly a member of the board of directors of the Ætna Life Insurance Co. and the National Fire Insurance Co. At the time of his death he was a director of the Hartford National Bank & Trust Co. He was also principally active in the affairs of the Horace Bushnell Memorial Hall, and was at one time its president. He received an honorary Master of Arts degree in 1923 and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1947, both from Colby College. In 1956 Hillyer College conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts.

Mr. Seaverns leaves one son, Appleton Hillyer Seaverns, headmaster of Suffield Academy, Suffield; one daughter, Mrs. Daniel Rodney Lee of Pacific Palisades, California; and five grandchildren.

LORING M. TAPLEY

Loring M. Tapley of Hartford, a member of this Society since May 2, 1950, died at Hartford Hospital December 27, 1956. He had been Republican registrar of voters for the city of Hartford for the past 36 years.

Mr. Tapley was born in Vinal Haven, Maine, June 13, 1895, and attended the University of Maine. He was an Air Force veteran of World War I, and a member of Rau-Locke Post, American Legion. He became deputy registrar of voters June 15, 1920, serving in that capacity until May, 1953, when he became registrar. He succeeded Andrew G. Nystrom as registrar and ran in the 1954 election for the full two year term.

Mr. Tapley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Boothby Tapley; his mother, Mrs. Frederick L. Tapley; a daughter, Mrs. Earl T. Williams of North Haven; and two grandchildren. Funeral services were held at the James T. Pratt Funeral Home, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Hartford.

ADA LOUISE TAYLOR

Ada Louise Taylor of Hartford, who became a member of this Society March 4, 1913, died in a Simsbury Convalescent home on November 7, 1956. She was born in Hartford August 10, 1863, the daughter of the late Samuel and Laura Louise Lester Taylor, and resided in this city most of her life. She was the oldest living member of the Church of the Good Shepherd, and was an early member of the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution. Funeral services were held at the Church of the Good Shepherd, with burial at Cedar Hill Cemetery, Hartford.

HARRY R. WILLIAMS

Harry R. Williams of Hartford, a member of this Society since April 4, 1916, died at his home in Hartford August 3, 1956 after a short illness. He was 94 years old and had been a patent attorney in this city for the past 58 years.

Mr. Williams was born in Hartford October 18, 1861, the son of the late James A. and Sarah Roberts Williams. He became an independent patent lawyer in 1887 and was a contemporary of many of Hartford's famous industrialists—Dr. Richard J. Gatling, inventor of the Gatling Gun; Christopher L. Spencer; Charles E. Billings; Francis A. Pratt; and Amos Whitney, all with whom he worked. He frequently appeared in famous court cases as an expert. The Lincoln Co., now Taylor & Fenn Manufacturing Co., sent him to England concerning patent litigation, as did the former Pratt & Cady Co.

Mr. Williams was connected with the Smyth Manufacturing Co. from 1889 until his retirement in 1945. He was a senior tenant of the Hartford National Bank & Trust Co. building where he set up his office in 1903. He is survived by three daughters, Beatrice H. Williams, Lois P. Williams, and Elizabeth W. Williams, all of Hartford. Funeral services were held at the James T. Pratt Funeral Home, with burial in Spring Grove Cemetery, Hartford.

Report of the Director

Mr. President and Members of the Society:

Introduction

By any standard, the year just concluded has been very satisfactory. Everything reached a new high: membership, attendance, income, sales and gifts. We stayed within our budget; income was higher than expected so we had a surplus of about $900.00, even after paying extraordinary moving and painting expenses. Our collections grew remarkably both by gift and purchase.

The auditorium cost	$240,245.61
dike	16,000.00
architect	18,705.93
furnishings, including scale model and soil tests	6,753.89
a total of	$281,705.43

slightly less than anticipated which in itself these days is noteworthy. The dike was a grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving; about $237,000.00 was proceeds from the sale of securities in the Hoadley Fund and the balance came from gifts, accumulated surpluses in both general and building funds, and money from savings banks in the Hoadley account. Fortunately, the expected loss of income has been more than made up by increased dividends so that even after taking a quarter of a million dollars from the principal of the George E. Hoadley Fund, the annual income for maintenance of our building is almost $2,000.00 more than it was in 1955.

Gifts to the Society totalled a gratifying $38,000.00, and sales of publications grossed $6,328.85. As for membership, there were 30 deaths and 40 resignations, and 147 new members, making the present total of 1,315.

This continued progress is encouraging and not to be dismissed lightly. Since 1940, however, I have deplored the lack of a manuscript cataloguer, the almost non-existent funds for museum purchases and the meagre funds for publishing books. Ironically, these three things, closest to my heart, have shown the least improvement. I am not discouraged, just impatient.

Libraries and museums have an inexhaustible appetite for storage facilities and technical equipment. For example, a cabinet shop, photographic studio, and conservator's laboratory require substantial sums only once. On the other hand, growth requires that periodically we add vertical files, print cases, storage drawers, racks and bins. Some of this we may secure through foundations but the salaries of technicians to utilize special tools must eventually come from operating income. At the present time, we require their services only one day a week.

Every year it is difficult to properly chronicle the past twelve months. So much happens that to describe everything would take hours. Time and, later, the printed page, requires condensation to the bare essentials. What I mention in this report is not necessarily to be considered an evaluation of acquisitions. Some things have or will appear in the Bulletin, and among the remainder, a selection was made to present in my opinion a brief, fair and diversified account covering the entire activities of the Society.

In our duties, the station wagon has travelled 12,000 miles, we have addressed more than 50 groups, written nearly 2,000 letters, and spent hours supervising the building. From month to month, visitors to the museum were able to see something new as nine major exhibitions were held.

The lecture series was well attended and with the opening in December of the Hoadley Auditorium, seating 256 persons, new attendance records were set. We are greatly indebted to the following speakers:

MRS. FRANCES EDWARDS—"Romance of Paper Making"

JAMES R. CASE—"Rochambeau's March Through Connecticut"

HAROLD L. PETERSON—"Early American Arms and Armor"

FRANK O. SPINNEY—"Country Furniture of New England"

FILMS: Restoration of two oil paintings by Sheldon Keck;
"Restoration of Antiques" by Ernest Lo Nano

MRS. CHARLOTTE K. STRATTON—"Hooked Rugs"

PENROSE R. HOOPES—"Daniel Burnap, Clockmaker"

WILLIAM L. WARREN—"Connecticut Potters and their Wares"

The Seminar, "Restoration of Old Houses", was held in the Auditorium and proved most gratifying to us for it was sold out in advance and more than 150 were unable to secure tickets. Particularly noteworthy was the fact that four states and 55 towns in Connecticut were represented. It is our intent to make this an annual affair, covering a variety of subjects. Plans for next year have not been completed, but it seems safe to assume the subject will again be houses but from a different approach. Questions submitted to the panel session will guide our planning, and lessons learned should improve what all agreed was an outstanding presentation.

Library

Replacing catalogued volumes lost in the flood has proven more costly and time consuming than anticipated. The insurance money covering the loss of these books is exhausted and there are still about 100 titles to replace. This puts a heavy burden on our limited book funds. The normal library routine has been resumed and purchasing and cataloguing goes on as usual. Through a fortunate purchase, 42 genealogies and local histories were acquired over the summer from galley proofs of a dealer's catalogue.

The new hallway connecting the Auditorium and Main Building made it necessary to move the genealogical manuscript collection. After considerable study of the problem, duplicate newspaper files were removed and the shift to microfilm of current papers made it possible to shelve these genealogical manuscripts in the 3rd level of the book stack adjacent to the local history collection. To prevent unauthorized removal and shelving, this area should be caged and under lock and key for service only by the staff.

Mrs. Muriel Alvord Ward has increased the principal of the George Buell Alvord Fund to $10,000.00, the income from which is for the purchase of manuscripts. This is of great help to us and has made possible the recent purchase of an orderly book kept by Sergt. Joel Smith for Capt. William Judd's Company, commencing Redding, March 21, 1779.

Mrs. Alfred Howe Terry has continued to catalogue the Jeremiah Wadsworth manuscript collection and through her efforts, hundreds of important letters have become available for the first time.

We are still adding to our collection of wall maps, this year acquiring Bristol and Waterbury, published in 1852, and Washington, 1853.

We were fortunate to purchase some autobiographical and genealogical material on the Brinley family. There were also letters to George Brinley (1774-1857), and a diary kept by him between May 5, 1852 and July 28, 1855. Mr. Brinley married Catharine, granddaughter of Israel Putnam, and their son was the noted collector of Americana. His observations and comments on local subjects are of considerable interest. For example,

“April 30, 1854, The Flood, Sunday

A fine day—the flood ceased to rise this day at 2 P.M. The greatest flood ever known in this city—it seems a correct record of extraordinary floods in this city have been kept since the year 1692 viz:

Another manuscript to be noted is the “Military History of James W. Eldridge”, as the author calls it, prepared from his diary kept during the Civil War. This was a gift from Mrs. Annie F. Eldridge Murray, his daughter and only survivor, now residing in California. The manuscript is dated Hartford, June 1st, 1866, and is introduced with an autobiographical sketch. He was born in Mt. Carmel, Wabash County, Ill., on June 4, 1841, where his family had emigrated from New London, Conn. Following the Civil War, James Eldridge made his residence in Hartford, and was a member of this Society at his death here on February 6, 1909. He was well known, and perhaps remembered by some, as the owner of a large Civil War collection, valued in its time at $40,000.00, and now unfortunately dispersed.

In addition to the diary entries, covering the period of August 1, 1862 when he entered the 127th N.Y.V. as a private, to May 20, 1865 when he was mustered out as 1st Lieutenant of the 23rd U.S. Colored Troop, there is much statistical information of value in this manuscript. He lists, for instance, the number of sieges, battles, and reconnaissances in which he engaged. In all, there were 14, such as the siege of Charleston, S.C., and the defences of Bermuda Hundred, Va., in which he engaged in continual fighting. In another list he indicates that he marched 861 miles during the war, traveled 4560 miles by boat, 3077 miles by rail-road, making a total traveled and marched while in the United States Army, 8498 miles. He was 63 times on Picket duty, went on 40 different marches, wrote 318 letters, 205 of which were sent home, and finally, he was 304 days under fire.

One of the most significant books from the library of the late Morgan G. Bulkeley, presented by his son Houghton Bulkeley, was William Wood's New England Prospect, 2nd edition, London, 1635. Although the identity of the author is clouded in antiquity, this was the best description, in its time, of Massachusetts. The literary historian, Moses Coit Tyler, author of History of American Literature, has said of Wood, "His style, indeed, is that of a man of genuine literary culture, and has the tone and flavor of the best Elizabethan prose writers; [and] almost none of the crabbedness of the sermon-makers and pamphleteers of his own day. . ." Wood arrived in Massachusetts in 1629 and returned to England August 15, 1633. His book was so popular that editions appeared in 1634, 1635, and 1639. Since then it has been reprinted a number of times. The last half describes the Indians in New England, followed by a vocabulary which, it is thought, Roger Williams and John Eliot helped compile.

We highly recommend your reading this book for it may have convinced your ancestors and mine that New England was a place to settle. For example: "a well skilled and industrious husbandman, for tillage and improvements of grounds; an ingenious carpenter, a cunning joiner, a handy-cooper, such a one as can make strong ware for the use of the Country, and a good Brick-maker, a Tyler and a Smith, a Leather dresser, a Gardiner, and a Taylour: one that hath good skill in any of these trades, if he can transport himself, he needs not feare but he may improve his time and endeavours to his owne benefit and comfort; if he cannot transport himselfe, he may provide himself of an honest master, and so may doe as well. . . ." This kind of descriptive material had a tremendous influence in settling the country, propaganda though it may be, and Wood's account was the first and one of the best.

Animated cap pistol, box, and caps, acquired through purchase

This copy is in fine condition with the map and agrees with all points in the Church catalogue except that page 47 is correctly numbered 47, not 7. Besides Mr. Bulkeley's bookplate there is also that of C. L. F. Robinson of Newport, R.I.

Another rare and important book from the Bulkeley collection is A History of New England by Edward Johnson, London, 1654. This is better known as The Wonder-Working Providence of Sion's Saviour in New England. Its scarcity may be due to the fact that in 1659 the remaining copies were incorporated into America Painted to the Life by Sir Ferdinand Gorges, with new title page and introduction. This was not piracy on the part of the author but trickery of the publisher who owned Johnson's book and was printer for Gorges. After poor sales for five years, the printer was trying to get rid of the books. When it was discovered, Gorges was furious because he was a knight, had been appointed by the crown as Governor of the Province of Maine, had had ambitions of being Governor of New England, and was then the Governor of the Fort and Island of Plimouth in Devonshire, and, well, who was Johnson?

Toy railroad train made of tin, the earliest of its kind in our Collections

Johnson was a "joiner" and was an early settler of Woburn, Mass. His work must not be relied upon too heavily because he lacked critical judgement, but he did record details of settling of towns, statistics of immigration, population figures, agricultural products and prices of commodities that were ignored by his contemporaries. His account of the Pequot War is most interesting because he was a Captain, Commander of the Militia Company of Woburn. His style is crude and yet for its period is an unusual and effective record of the events of which he was an eyewitness.

This copy is a fine one in a Bedford binding, bearing the Huth bookplate.

Museum

William L. Warren assumed charge of the Museum almost a year ago and has done a splendid job under difficulties. Records are badly out of shape and new storage facilities have yet to be installed. Despite this, he arranged interesting exhibits, supervised numerous repairs, and catalogued a large quantity of objects.

A new print room now occupies the old manuscript stack space and for the first time, prints, maps, broadsides and photographs are together. If enough files and boxes can be secured it will not take long before the collection will be much more useful and kept in better condition.

In January the final move from the Wadsworth Atheneum was made and now everything owned by the Society is in this building. Much of this has been sorted and by summer the first and hardest part will be completed. The bulk of this material was from the "Iron Room", a former coal bunker, low ceilinged, very dirty, which dated from before 1900. We found a number of surprises and a great deal of material that will be useful. We also found a communion set missing since 1937!

Several maps and drawings were repaired and mounted as well as two pictures of Curtisville that were in very poor shape. Six paintings were relined and completely restored, a valuable piece of crewel work was painstakingly repaired, and old glass protecting two embroidered pictures was replaced.

Alfred Straw was employed part time to photograph the Seymour furniture collection and the Morgan B. Brainard collection of tavern signs. He took about 250 photographs which has worked out to the advantage of all concerned.

We were fortunate to purchase eight marked stoneware specimens when George S. McKearin's collection was sold. It is surprising how few such pieces we had, but already several additional ones have been given us.

The Ætna Life Insurance Company turned over to us more than 80 8 x 10" prints and a sound motion picture film of the St. Joseph's Cathedral fire last December 31st. This was of special significance for it illustrates our desire to collect current records.

Under the will of the late Ada L. Taylor, we acquired over 300 prints from the famed Samuel Taylor photograph collection. This has been catalogued and a series "Then and Now" appeared in the Sunday Courant Magazine Section.

Mrs. Leon P. Broadhurst presented a lovely miniature painted on ivory of John Lawrence, ca. 1800, many years Treasurer of the State. Although we do not know the artist, he may be identified some day, for it was likely done locally.

Philip Hammerslough, inspired by the watch paper article in the Bulletin, presented an interesting one of John Proctor Trott, New London, engraved by J. D. Stout, Jr., of New York. Israel E. Liverant owns the copper plate for the R. Bradley, Hartford, watchmaker advertisement. While loaned to us, impressions were made. This is unknown in its original state.

An interesting road sign came to us from Bert C. Gable. It reads:

"2 miles of dusty road to Hartford Center
Keep on your leather blinders till you enter
Be fair slow down and keep in mind
We have to eat the dust you leave behind."

Mary Allis of Fairfield gave us a rare pottery jar marked West Hartford. This is the only one of the type we have discovered.

Among purchases should be mentioned some 30 Kellogg prints and animated cap pistols manufactured by Ives of Bridgeport and Stevens of Cromwell.

Just before her death, Miss Allys E. Tyler of Windsor gave us a fine four paneled oak chest. According to family tradition, this piece was brought from England by William Phelps (1599-1672) who settled in Windsor in 1635. Analysis by the laboratory at the Henry Francis du Pont Winterthur Museum indicates the wood to be of American origin. Consequently, $1,000.00 was added to the appraisal value of the chest, and it is established as one of the earliest pieces of furniture in our collection.

Editor

The customary four issues of our 32 page Bulletin appeared this year, plus index for volume 19, and the Annual Report of 48 pages. Books published included:

The Connecticut River Steamboat Story by Melancthon W. Jacobus

Jonathan Trumbull, Connecticut's Merchant Magistrate by Glenn Weaver

Antique Furniture in Suffield, Connecticut by Charles S. Bissell

Catalogue No. 1: Connecticut Chairs in the Collection of The Connecticut Historical Society

The chair catalogue was distributed free to members, but mention in Antiques Magazine has helped sell a number of copies. Mr. Bissell's book received an award from the American Association for State and Local History. The Connecticut River Steamboat Story has sold well and there are less than 300 copies remaining.

Most of our sales are by direct mail. Advertising has been very expensive and not worth the cost. Somehow, we must prepare and circularize lists of these and other books that are available and turn a frozen asset into a useful one.

Publishers are always enthusiastic about their books and one must accept their statements with some reserve. However, with Dr. Weaver's book we have something to crow about and we are going to make the most of it. Here are excerpts from the reviews that have appeared:

American Historical Review, January, 1957, Clifford K. Ship-ton: "Dr. Weaver's knowledge of the background of this monograph is thorough; his skill in handling the minutiae of prices and trade and in making interesting reading of his conclusions is unusual."

The Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography, January, 1957, Arthur L. Jensen: "Much can be learned from the chronicle of a failure, and this book's major virtue lies in its careful attempt to relate its subject's activities to the general eighteenth-century mercantile background and to explain the circumstances of Trumbull's failure."

New England Quarterly, March, 1957, Lawrence Henry Gipson: "... illuminating and scholarly book. . . ."

William and Mary Quarterly, April, 1957, John M. Hemphill, II: "In rescuing from oblivion the mercantile activities of this highly unsuccessful Yankee, Dr. Weaver has contributed to a better understanding of the problems which faced the colonial merchants. The explanation of the effect of paper money inflation on an importing merchant (p. 21) is brief but to the point. The description of the chain of credit which linked Connecticut farmers to English manufacturers (p. 98) is excellent. The concluding paragraphs (pp. 150-155) provide a more than adequate explanation for Jonathan Trumbull's lack of success as a businessman. . . . There remain to be written a few words each for the publisher, the printer, and the binder. The Connecticut Historical Society is congratulated for encouraging a worth-while book; the Connecticut Printers, for turning out an attractive piece of work; and Russell Rutter, for producing a striking cover."

This year we will publish Volume 29 of the Collections, the next to the last volume dealing with the papers of John Cotton Smith; a catalogue of the Morgan B. Brainard Tavern Sign Collection, which is on loan, and a catalogue of the George Dudley Seymour Collection of Furniture. Funds to print these have been set aside or are in special accounts. The final book scheduled is on Daniel Burnap, Connecticut Clockmaker. Penrose Hoopes, author of Connecticut Clockmakers of the Eighteenth Century has written the text at our request. In my opinion, it is the finest and most complete account of an 18th century American craftsman possible, for it is based upon original account books, letters and a memorandum book kept by the subject, all of which are in our collection. Last May, just after Mr. Hoopes had finished his manuscript, we purchased a memorandum book commenced by Burnap September 9, 1779, the day he started work for Thomas Harland of Norwich. In this Burnap records his trade secrets, probably learned under Harland. There are numerous drawings and details on how to make chime, eight-day and steeple clocks, how to make silver spoons, jewelry and many other items of this nature. Fortunately, this important material was located in time to be included in the book. Since we have only half enough money to print this, authority has been granted to experiment with a pre-publication promotion and if sufficient orders are received to guarantee costs, we will go ahead.

Your staff work unbelievably hard and the soundness of the Society is in no small part due to their unselfishness. President Brainard, your officers and committees have given much time and thought to the proper functioning of this institution. If we are achieving the goals set by our founders 132 years ago, and I believe we are, it is because many share in that responsibility.

Respectfully,

ALLERTON C. HICKMOTT,
Treasurer.

MEMBERS are proud that The Connecticut Historical Society is the largest and most important repository in the State for private records. We are pleased to accept responsibility for preserving family papers, business and political correspondence, diaries, journals and account books, Bible records, maps, files of newspapers, periodicals, prints, photographs and volumes written by Connecticut authors and materials printed in this State.

For the Museum, we are particularly interested in securing portraits, locally made furniture and fine specimens of the everyday articles of living which are so often worn out before anyone has thought of placing them in an institution. In this way we shall eventually have a complete picture of the changes in styles and customs in our State. Articles bearing labels of a Connecticut manufacturer are also highly desirable. The Acquisitions Committee will be pleased to consult with you concerning possible gifts or deposits.

Persons interested in becoming members of the Society may secure application blanks and descriptive literature by addressing the Director.

The admission fee of $5.00, which takes the place of the first year's dues, must accompany the application for membership. It is credited to the principal of the Publication Fund. Thereafter, annual dues may be $3.00, $5.00 or $15.00, depending upon class of membership. Associate Members, who must reside outside the State of Connecticut, pay $3.00 annually; they receive the Bulletin and Annual Report, but they may not vote nor hold office. Active Members pay $5.00 annually, and may vote and, if Connecticut residents, may hold office. Contributing Members pay $15.00 annually. All members may purchase publications at 20% discount, have access to the reading room shelves and the privilege of genealogical correspondence service. Information concerning special privileges of Life, Endowment and Benefactor Members may be secured upon application.
